Resistances: Cold

TRAITS & FEATURES

Self-Taught Sorcerer. Johnny learned magic from the sea itself during his years lost at sea. His spells are wild and unpredictable but powerful.

Master Shipbuilder. Johnny can build or repair any seafaring vessel. Ships he builds have +2 AC and double HP.

Sea Madness. Johnny spent years lost at sea and it left its mark. He talks to the ocean, claims fish bring him news, and occasionally forgets he's on land.

Ocean's Blessing. Johnny can breathe underwater and has a swimming speed of 40 ft. He can also cast Control Water at will.

ACTIONS

Tidal Strike. Melee Spell Attack: +7 to hit, reach 10 ft. Hit: 18 (4d6 + 4) bludgeoning (water-infused fist).

Call Lightning (3/Day). A bolt of lightning strikes a point within 120 ft. DC 15 DEX save, 3d10 lightning damage (half on save).

Tidal Wave (1/Day). A 30-ft. wave sweeps across a 30-ft. line. DC 15 STR save or 4d8 bludgeoning and knocked prone.

Fog Cloud (At Will). Creates a 20-ft. radius sphere of fog, heavily obscuring the area.

LORE & ESSENCE

"The sea speaks to me, friend. Today she says... run."

Johnny Deep is the mayor of the port town of Kastof and a self-taught sorcerer who learned his magic the hard way — by getting lost at sea for years. The ocean changed him. He came back with wild magic, an unnervingly close relationship with the water, and a tendency to hold conversations with waves. He's a master shipbuilder, a decent mayor, and absolutely, certifiably a little bit crazy. The people of Kastof wouldn't have him any other way.
